Intergenerational England and Intergenerational Music Making invite you to join AAA: Access All Ages, a unique event celebrating the power of intergenerational connections across England. We are inviting individuals, communities, local and national partners to showcase the incredible work happening across sectors to bridge generational divides and foster meaningful relationships.

We are seeking support from partners across housing, health, culture, education, and the workforce, to help amplify our collective mission and inspire lasting change. Together, we can demonstrate how an intergenerational approach can address critical challenges like social isolation, mental health, and age segregation while creating a more inclusive society.

This event will mark the launch of a coalition of partners united by a shared vision of intergenerational collaboration. Join us in celebrating partnership - uniting in a moment of music.

'Access All Ages' is a partnership between Intergenerational England and Intergenerational Music Making. This celebratory event will take place at Bridgewater Hall in Manchester, bringing together hundreds of people from across the sectors and communities across England. On the day, we will officially launch IE's coalition of partners, and demonstrate how impactful leveraging the power of music is at connecting people across 5 generations.

A central highlight of the event will be a collective Moment of Song, written collaboratively by individuals of all ages across the country.

Recognising the value of intergenerational thinking and understanding that we are all part of an intergenerational society is key to tackling many of the pressing challenges we face as a country. By fostering these connections, we can build stronger, more inclusive communities.

We warmly invite you to be a part of this moment, and join us as a partner to support our vision of a connected England.

LORD SYED KAMALL

MEMBER OF THE UK HOUSE OF LORDS

"With an ageing population and increased isolation amongst many age groups, I believe it is important to promote intergenerational thinking and practice wherever we can. By encouraging cooperation between government at all levels and local civil society, we can address local issues with a fresh perspective that considers the needs and strengths of all age groups.

Viewing challenges through an intergenerational lens allows us to build more inclusive, resilient communities where everyone, regardless of age, can thrive. I hope that MPs and my fellow peers from across the political and ideological spectrum will find the time to get involved in intergenerational projects, and to build a more inclusive society."
